

Strikers

Zodiac Data Sheet

The Lowe & Fletcher range of Electronic Latches are supplied with a door mounted striker bolt as standard. The striker bolt is attached to the door and is retained by the latch to lock the door when it is closed.

A sensor inside the electronic latch body can detect whether the door is closed and if the striker bolt is present. This means the status of the striker may be either 'present' inside the latch or 'not present' inside the latch. When a latch is locked but the door is open (striker bolt not present), the latch is primed ready to capture and retain the bolt when the door is next closed (see status chart below).

The overall design of the striker allows for door misalignment with several inbuilt features including a 'floating' striker attachment, a ball-ended safe striker and wide tolerance striker socket.

Latch and striker bolt status

Latch State	Striker Bolt	Door Open Feedback (switch)	Notes
Locked	Present	Yes: 1	Door closed and locked
Locked	Not Present	Yes: 0	Door open, latch ready to capture bolt
Unlocked	Present	No	Uncommon state: spring release
Unlocked	Not Present	No	Door open
